Urgency ordinance

Water board set to enact connection limit

By NANCY HILLS

THE TIME has come.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District is scheduled to enact its water connection limit urgency ordinance next Monday night with an added trigger for stopping connections.

An annual cap of 110 acre feet of water was added to the proposed Monterey Peninsula Water Management District ordinance that mandates the types of connections that will be prohibited and allowed.

"For the past five years, the (total) permits issued averaged 221 acre feet a year," explained water board chairman Dick Heuer. "The cap is not intended to tighten or loosen the restrictions. It is simply to provide an established criterion so there will be a significant savings from the action."

The water board will meet to vote on the ordinance at 7 p.m., Monday, Jan. 22 at Martin Luther King High School Auditorium, 1723 Broadway, Seaside. If approved, it will take effect that day and will be lifted when the Carmel River flows to the ocean.

The entire spectrum of the building industry has protested the limitation, giving public testimony in two- and three-hour long public hearings that the action is unfair to one segment of the community and could be an economic disaster.

The ordinance states that the current three-year drought "is one of the most severe in the historical record of the Monterey Peninsula." Historical evidence indicates that the peninsula has experienced droughts up to five to seven years. Water runoff, the most important number, is currently 14 percent of the average (prior to recent storms).

In 1989, during 20-percent rationing, the district issued more than 1,300 permits for permanent new water use, the ordinance reads.

During its meeting on Jan. 8, when the board outlined the types of permits that will and will not be allowed under this law, some of the board members worried that they had so many exceptions to water connection limits that the district ordinance would not save any water at all.

Director Dale Hekhuis had suggested that the staff prepare an estimate of how much water the limitations would save, given all the exemptions. In response, an ad hoc committee formed to review the proposed ordinance suggested that a maximum water limit, as well as a type of permit limit, be imposed.

The cap does not include water that will be used by projects "in process" as of Jan. 22. Permits that will not be allowed include:

- Commercial or industrial permits, unless it will use the same or less than a new single-family home. That includes new permits or expansion of existing water use.

- Permits for open space watering. This also includes expansions.

- Multi-family dwellings, both new and expansions.

- Any new systems that would connect with the peninsula water resource system used by California-American Water Co.

Permits that will be issued up to 110 acre feet in total include:

- Permits for single residential lots of record.

- The expansion of existing residential water use if the home has had every practical type of water conservation retrofit possible. Commercial also gets this exception if the new use does not exceed .25 acre feet, the average annual use of a single-family home.

- Low and moderate-income residential housing.

- Projects in progress as of Jan. 22 that have received a discretionary or ministerial approval from a land use agency within the district. That holds only if the project has not experienced an "avoidable delay." If there had been an avoidable delay, the project may be able to receive a permit through a variance.

Discretionary permits are listed as a use permit, a zoning variance, final architectural or design approval or a building permit. The certification of an environmental impact

"The cap is not intended to tighten or loosen the restrictions. It is simply to provide an established criterion so there will be a significant savings from the action."

report does not qualify as a project in progress.

Other permits that may be obtained through the variance process include:

- Governmental projects, including redevelopment.

- Projects for non-profit or non-governmental community uses.

- Senior citizen housing projects.

Plans for Monastery Beach parking meet resistance

By DAVID LELAND

THE COUNTY planning staff has deemed an application for two parking lots at Monastery Beach incomplete, but that may be the least of the state Department of Parks and Recreation's problems.

"We think the whole thing is still a disaster. They absolutely ignored the mandate."

— Elaine Gloodt

It seems that area residents are still fuming over the state's proposal.

"We think the whole thing is still a disaster," said Elaine Gloodt, chairperson for the Highlands-Bixby Advisory Committee. "They absolutely ignored the mandate."

State plans call for a 35-space parking lot south of the beach and a 40-space lot on the north side of a grove of eucalyptus trees, with an access road from Highway 1.

When residents first learned of the plans about three years ago, they banded together in an effort to scale down the proposal and keep parking on the south end of the 36-acre parcel.

After hearing testimony from about 50 residents during a community meeting before the Parks and Recreation Commission, the state said it would go back to the drawing board.

Its latest proposal still calls for double parking lots.

"It's basically the same thing as it was before," said Carmel Meadows resident

Tommy Tomblin, whose home overlooks the parcel. "They're not following the letter of the law or the spirit of what the community said to do."

On the surface, at least, the state's idea for a parking lot seems benign enough. Weekends currently find drivers parking on the dirt shoulder of Highway 1 and taking trails down to the beach area. Also known as San Jose State Beach (even though it is part of Carmel River State Beach), the waters also offer excellent scuba diving.

The Carmel Area Land Use Plan, however, mandates that parking shall be moved off of the road via a parking lot.

The site chosen by the state for the parking lot was formally owned by the Briggs family and was purchased several years ago for $4.5 million.

While the state-owned parcel stretches from the Carmel Meadows subdivision to Bay School, only one-half acre will be used for the parking lot, according to Mary Wright, parks district supervisor.

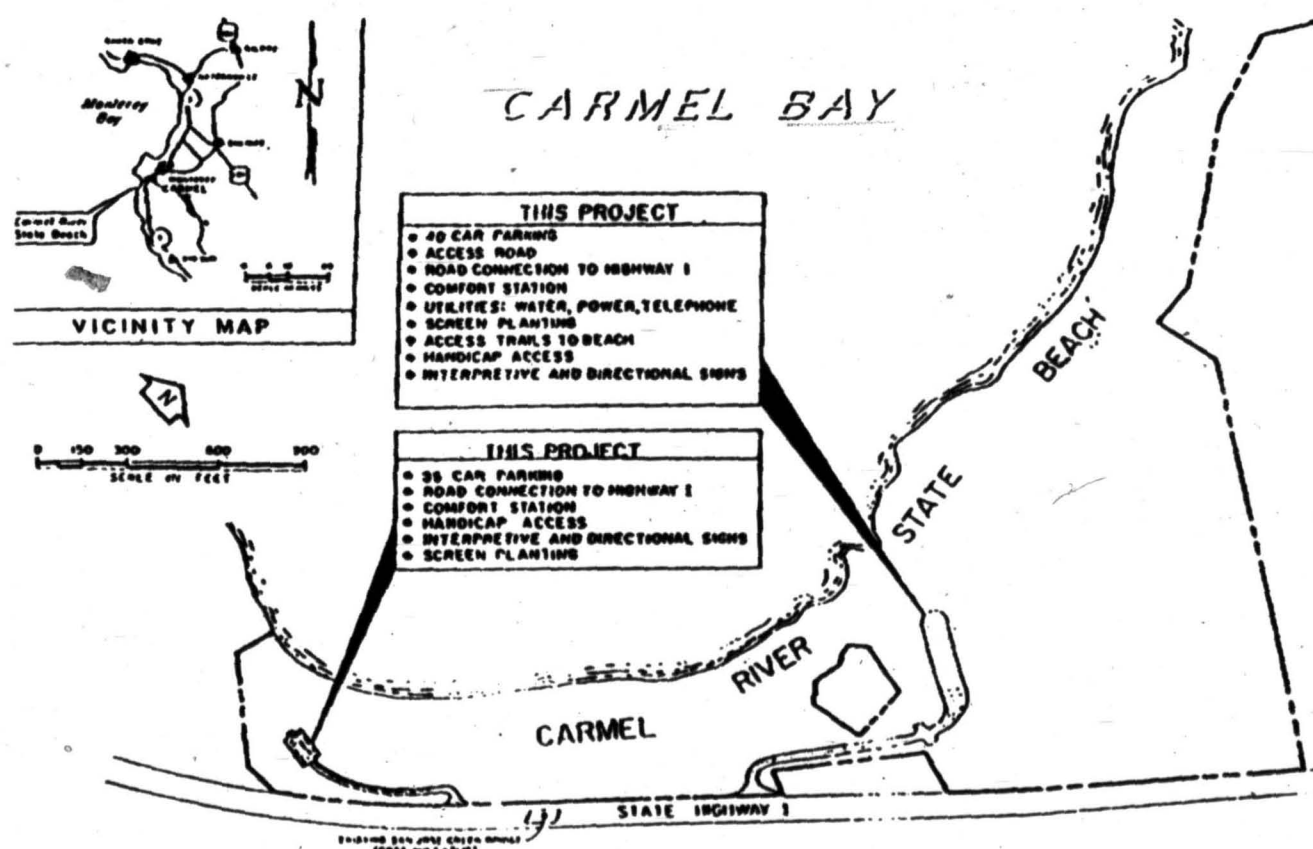

Area residents have fought to have the parking area at the south end of the property; Wright said the state has done its best.

"We put as many spaces at the south end as was environmentally feasible," said Wright, adding that previous plans called for only 10 parking spaces at the south lot. "It's a substantial difference."

While some observers are shaking their heads in amazement at the current state of affairs, Wright said all is going according to plans.

"There was never a belief that we could put it on one end or the other," she said.

MEANWHILE, THE county, which ultimately will have the final say on the permit, has raised some serious questions on the proposal.

THIS MAP, released by the state Parks and Recreation Department, details the parking lot proposal earmarked for Monastery Beach just off Highway 1-south of Carmel.

Among answers needed to complete the application:

- Calculations taking into account increased traffic to the beach as the years progress. Also, where will cars park if visitors stay longer than the 15 or 20 minutes that the state surmises?

- How will shoulder parking be eliminated and future parking discouraged along the highway shoulder?

- Under the guidelines of the LUP, the southern lot is designated for short stays.

Will it still be deemed that under new plans calling for increased parking places?

- The county is also demanding that the state complete an erosion control plan for the southern portion of the parking area.

Meanwhile, Wright said the state has not budgeted the $1.5 million project into this year's plans.

"We want to get a better reading from the county," she said. "The county has raised a lot of additional questions."

Moral questions

Dear Editor:

Regarding "Who's Noriega?" (Padre Corner, Jan. 11 Carmel Pine Cone): Our high schoolers' limited knowledge about Noriega is not surprising, though it is odd that columnist Emily Rubin believes in "President Bush's obsession with capturing Noriega throughout his years of being CIA director," when in fact drug-trafficker Noriega was a highly paid employee of the CIA. However unsavory Noriega may be, though, he is not the real question here.

What did shock me is that none of the students even questioned our legal or moral right to invade a foreign country and kill more than 200 people. Presumably Carmel High has taught them something about American government and that the right to declare war is vested in the Congress by our Constitution. Even Congress has forgotten that provision.

Ask yourselves this one question: If the Russians were to launch a massive invasion of a small country tomorrow in order to get rid of a corrupt officer, would that be all right with you? A debate on the subject at Carmel High would be educational, in the best sense of that misused word.

Timing is all

Dear Editor:

How fortunate we are to live in an area where the city council members look ahead.

I just read an article describing the difficulties the people of Concord, Mass. have had over the years trying to stave off encroachments upon Walden Pond and the surrounding Walden Woods, the scene of Henry David Thoreau's landmark book.

The one thing many people of Concord most regret is that those before them did not purchase key properties when they were available. The key words are when available. Timing is all and the people of Carmel and its surrounding area will in the future be thankful to our current city council for voting to purchase the Hodges Property now.

A great loss

Dear Editor:

On Dec. 11, 1989, Helen Praeger passed away. Her passing away is such a great loss to her husband Lloyd and her many, many friends who dearly loved her.

My family and all of our friends met Helen when she was employed at the Mission Ranch for 20 or more years. Our friends and my family always stayed at the Mission Ranch while Helen was in their employ. She loved people and cared about their comforts. We had dinner many times at the Mission Ranch with Lloyd and Helen.

When Helen was requested to retire, she was heartbroken. A part of Helen died at that time and all of us knew that. We were so very sad for her.

These past few years all of us continued to go to Carmel to visit Lloyd and Helen, and have wonderful memories that we will cherish of Helen Praeger.

To Lloyd Praeger goes out deepest sympathy and our love.

Sad situation

Dear Editor:

Remember when we used to reclaim our town after Labor Day? Now there is no letup in the wild traffic swarming everywhere. Our streets are being chopped up as fast as they can be repaired. Where do all these people live? Do they have homes — or do they plan on just driving around for the rest of their lives? And it all happened so fast.

I remember walking to town and chatting with people like Fred Godwin, Barney Siegel and Corum Jackson. When we had a question about baseball we could drop in at Doc Staniford's drug store and he would always have the answer.

It was fun chatting with the ever-smiling Pon Chung while he was washing windows at Walt Pilot's creamery on Ocean Avenue, which went the way of the Carmel Theatre next door.

Now we have the "fuel spills" and the "odor investigations" to cope with as well as the driving danger created by the double-parked commercial trucks.

We usually do our shopping in the morning and stay away from The Crossroads area in the afternoon.

I know that what is happening is legal and doubtless benefits some people, but it is also so very, very sad.

Heatless

Dear Editor:

In the past month my husband and I and my mother and father tried to go see some of the latest movies. Recently my mother and father went to the Golden Bough and when they got to the ticket counter they were informed of no heat, they decided to go in anyway and it was freezing. You can imagine the Golden Bough Theater without heat — it was like a cave.

Three weeks later we went to the same theater, Golden Bough, to see the same movie, Steel Magnolias, they still had no heat and we couldn't go in because I was just getting over the flu and couldn't afford to get sick again.

Two nights later my husband and I decided to go to Del Monte Theater (Cinema 70) to see another movie, and guess what, no heat, about midway through the film they turned the heat on for about 5 minutes and then the air conditioning came on. Well we were freezing by the time we got out of there. Everyone was complaining. I don't know for sure but I think the Golden Bough and the Del Monte Theater are owned by the same persons, or at least run by the same people.

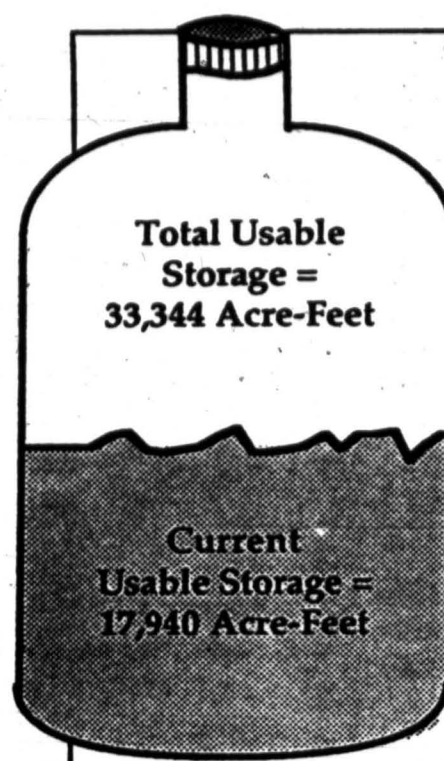

This practice of no heat is very unhealthy and probably accounts for the lack of business at the theaters. If they cannot afford to be in business correctly they should sell to people who care for the health of their customers.

several thoughts that have been bothering me for years need to be shared and commented on.

A while back I read a letter from a 13-year-old in a local magazine of his concern for the continued manufacture and stockpiling of atomic weapons. I too am concerned with this trend and share the same concern. However, Cain killed Abel with his bare hands and he was just as dead as though he had been killed with a thermonuclear device or a breath of anthrax spores.

We as a nation abhor violence where large loss of life is concerned, but we continue to support military violence in Central America and Israel. Guns, bombs and engines of war are useless without the urge to use them. The world is definitely at hazard, but what most needs correcting is the human mentality that would push the button or raise a threatening hand.

The average human being is kind, considerate, and mild-mannered, but the same person can become an animal behind the wheel of an automobile.

Speaking of the highway, the next time you are out for a drive and in the outside lane with a car passing you, racing to overtake you and then cut in front of you to make an off-ramp; he (or she) would just as soon kill you and themselves as to wait for you to pass the ramp and pull off behind you. Also notice when you accidentally pull out a little too close to an overtaking car, the vulgar gestures and silently mouthed curses it breeds.

These are the treats we ought to concern ourselves with. Another sign I find most disturbing is the crowds that line up for a Rambo or Dirty Harry movies and the increasing frequency of films like Steel Metal Jacket, which really packs the crowds in. This group craves a diet of violence and they would be the ones I would most fear if our social system broke down.

For us to cease the production of sufficient warheads to maintain our stock of nuclear weapons, and mind you we are not increasing the inventory we have had for years, would not stabilize peace and could in fact encourage a military adventure that might not otherwise occur.

There is indeed a need to restrain the destructive ability of nations, whether they are nuclear or not, and the best place to begin is by working to alter the attitude of mankind about war and violence, period. We as a society should begin individually to handle and quench the lust for getting even, getting in front of the other guy, being right at any cost, greed, (the activities of the stock market of late are a prime example of the lust for power, wanting more, wanting it all).

We celebrate Christmas and Easter with too much emphasis on the material, and completely forget the life of Him who went about teaching the Golden Rule and demonstrating the way to heal hatred with love. Any serious approach to providing mankind safety from destruction must begin with these teachings of His truth.

The forces at work in the world today portend great promise for mankind, but the human lust for power is great and could destroy us before we ever reach the 21st century. The fragile flame of peace needs protecting and nourishing least it flicker out. Each of us has the responsibility to aid this effort. Remember the grinding wheel of war shows no favorites and spares no one.

Helping the kids

Dear Editor:

What have you done with last year's Christmas cards? If you still have them, we can certainly use them.

The American public today is becoming more aware of the tragedy of child abuse and neglect. In your business of news reporting you have doubtlessly seen the same stories I have.

But the American public is not aware of some of the programs in operation to rescue the innocent victims of brutality.

For the past seventeen years I have donated my time and energies as a member of the Board of Trustees of one such organization — St. Jude's Ranch for Children in Boulder City, Nev., a nonsectarian facility just outside Las Vegas.

St. Jude's doubled in size this year when it purchased a closed home for girls; it is doing a good job. It could do a bigger and better job with more support. Help me help these kids by alerting your readers to St. Jude's unique fund-raising project, recycling used Christmas cards.

Please send your Christmas card fronts to: St. Jude's Ranch for Children, P.O. Box 1426-LE, Boulder City, NV 89005-1426. For further information call (702) 293-3131.

The kids will love you for it.

New controversy erupts over Otter Cove house

By DAVID LELAND

ALMOST A year and one new owner after serving as the focus of controversy, a Tudor-style structure in Otter Cove is back in the news.

'Just because you sell a project does not mean that you walk away from the violation.'

— Nancy Cave
— Coastal Commission

Located about five miles south of Carmel near Yankee Point, the four-bedroom, 7½-bath home, built by Los Altos residents Terry and James Colo, was an embarrassment to state and county officials because of its grandiosity.

'We were in compliance prior to the sale of the house.'

— Terry Colo

Planners and architectural review committees were amazed as the ocean-front house began to take shape, and the 16-foot height became 30 feet. The starting elevation was cited for the discrepancy.

"It's the tallest house that exists now in Otter Cove," said Elaine Gloodt, a member of the Highlands-Bixby Advisory Committee, at the time of construction.

Now owned by Carmel Valley resident Ken Baker, the mansion is under review by the state Coastal Commission's legal department for landscaping work allegedly performed without a permit.

Specifically, the Coastal Commission alleges that Baker poured a 15-foot driveway, built a 2-foot retaining wall and removed soil from the site.

All of the work took place on a scenic easement originally recorded with the county on Sept. 2, 1987.

Moreover, Colo had been in the midst of a restoration plan mandated by the Coastal Commission when he sold the property — Baker has ignored pleas from the commission to complete that work.

"The commission staff attempted to make you (Baker) aware that, as the new owner of the property, you were responsible for any Coastal Act violation that may be present on the property," said Nancy Cave, statewide enforcement staff coordinator in a letter. "You have failed to accept or respond to our letters and have since continued with construction."

Originally built as a "dream" house for the Colos, the property was sold to Baker last October.

Cave said the Colos are also responsible and will be taken to court along with Baker and, possibly the home's general contractor, if an agreement cannot be reached.

"Just because you sell a project does not mean that you walk away from the violation," said Cave, referring to a Feb. 2, 1989 "stop work" order placed on the property.

Contacted at her home in Los Altos, Terry Colo said she did not feel obligated for work that Baker did or did not perform.

"We were in compliance prior to the sale of the house," she said, adding that Baker was duly informed of the violation at the time of sale.

IT SEEMS that Baker is being somewhat elusive — not answering the Coastal Commission's letters and not giving out his unlisted telephone number.

The commission had given Baker a Jan. 12 deadline to respond and had not heard anything from him at press time, according to Cave.

The commission is asking Baker to file the necessary documents changing the coastal permit to his name; submit a complete application to remove any construction that has taken place in the scenic easement; and submit plans to carry out the restoration plan originally placed on the property.

Not known for its strong-armed tactics, the Santa Cruz bureau of the Coastal Commission has taken the proper steps to prosecute the case by forwarding the matter to its legal department.

"Headquarters takes a little bit of a firmer approach," said Cave, from her San Francisco office.

If an agreement cannot be reached, the case will be turned over to the state Attorney General's Office, Cave said.

Possible penalties include substantial monetary fines and being forced to return the land to its pre-violation status.

Earthquake safety survey identifies 49 structures

By NANCY HILLS

AN EARTHQUAKE safety survey of buildings in downtown Carmel has put 49 property owners on notice that the structures they own may not meet earthquake standards.

Peninsula receives much-needed soak

THE MONTEREY PENINSULA, currently in the midst of a fourth critically dry year, received some welcome rain during the past seven days.

The latest drenching came early Tuesday morning, when .30 of an inch fell in Monterey, bringing the storm total to 2.53 inches, according to Robert Renard, volunteer observer for the National Weather Service.

Totals for the year are still well below normal, he said. Since July 1, the peninsula has received only 6.74 inches, compared to last year's 7.55 inches. Normal for this time is 8.92 inches, with a seasonal norm being 18.70.

Renard said the off-again, on-again rain-fall could continue through the weekend.

"It almost looks normal," he said, adding that the nights should be cool. "It almost looks too good to be true."

Renard said the current weather pattern can be attributed to the breaking down of a stubborn high pressure system off the coast that has shunted storm systems northward. The system split apart, he said, with half going south and half moving east.

It is purely speculative what breaks high pressure ridges down, he said. Conversely, guesswork is involved in forecasting if the high pressure system will build back up and create another dry weather pattern.

Renard said that the 30-day forecast is "not too promising," but forecasting any more than five days in advance is not considered terribly accurate.

He added that typically the peninsula receives below-normal rainfall, but that is offset by years when the area is inundated. With that in mind, the median seasonal rainfall for Monterey is only 16.50 inches.

The property owners have one year to hire a qualified structural engineer to conduct an in-depth inspection of the building and prove it meets earthquake standards or, if not, what steps can be taken to make it comply with building codes.

The owner then has five years to make any structural changes needed or the building, according to the current ordinance, will be demolished.

The Carmel City Council approved the ordinance, which mandates the survey and follow-up, last spring to comply with state earthquake readiness standards. It applies only to unreinforced masonry, which includes unreinforced adobe.

The list includes some heavy hitters. The Carmel Mission Basilica is on it. The Catholic arch diocese will be getting a letter, even though since it is an historical building, it is exempt from state law.

"The owner must be notified, however," explained Carmel building official Tim Meroney.

Meroney added that many of the buildings qualify for the list only because of a unreinforced masonry fire wall on the property line.

"Just because a building is on the list, doesn't mean the entire structure is unsafe. In a lot of cases it is just a small portion or one wall," he said.

Twelve of the buildings are on Ocean Avenue, including the Carmel Plaza, Normandy Inn, Carmel Drug Store, Doud Arcade, Dick Bruhn's, Dansk II, Rittmaster & Del Monte Realty, Laurel Burch Gallerie and Oxbridge/Facets of Brazil.

A partial list of other buildings includes the Carmel Post Office, Carmel Fire Department, Village Corner, Bruno's Market, the Wells Fargo Bank, Carmel Presbyterian Church, First Church of Christ Scientist, Carmel Camera Center, Conway of Asia, Adobe Inn, Security Pacific Bank and Del Dono Court.

To qualify as an historical building, it must be registered with state or national historical agencies.

Meroney said that last year, before the Oct. 17 earthquake, the city hired retired Monterey city chief building Don Piper to conduct a check of all buildings in the commercial district. The field survey checked for buildings that could contain unreinforced masonry. He found 90 buildings.

Once the in-field survey was completed, Piper then researched construction and building plans in city hall records. That pared the list down to 49.

Until 1965, when the city began to require reinforced masonry, it was common practice to build without reinforcement.

Meroney said though it sounds tough,

Water board will discuss interim project

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board next week will consider policies for its interim water supply projects, including an off-site retrofit program.

The board will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 24 at the Monterey County Environmental Health Conference Room, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey.

The board is scheduled to cover new wells in the Seaside aquifer, Pacific Grove's use of reclamation water on its golf course and cemetery, desalination, a subpotable grant projects for governmental agencies and the retrofit project.

The offsite retrofit project would allow new development if the developer retrofits another property to offset the increase in water the new project would consume. The district has discussed a 2-1 ratio of savings to new use.

City will issue parking permits

THE CITY of Carmel-by-the-Sea will be issuing Resident Parking Permits there are a number of ways the buildings can be brought into compliance.

"I don't see any of these buildings being demolished," he said.

He added that he had already received his first telephone call from an owner.

"He said thanks, that he knew he had to do something and this will just get him going," Meroney said.

to Carmel residents and residential property owners.

The permits will be good for the calendar year of 1990. The permits authorize the holders extended parking ONLY in the following time zones:

1. Two hours in parking spaces designated for one hour.
2. Sixty minutes in parking spaces designated for thirty minutes.
3. Parking on Scenic Drive after sunset.

In order to have a permit, you must meet the following requirements:

1. Be the registered owner of the vehicle.
2. Bring your vehicle to the designated location.
3. Be a resident or own residential property within the city limits of Carmel-by-the-Sea.
4. Bring some type of proof indicating you are a resident or own residential property within the city limits.
5. Bring $4 to purchase the permit.

The permit will be issued at Sunset Center, Room 10, on:

1. Saturday, Jan. 20, 1990, from 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.
2. Wednesday, Jan. 24, 1990, from 12 p.m.-3 p.m.
3. Saturday, Jan. 27, 1990, from 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Permits will be available at the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department after Feb. 1, between the hours of 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

City council faced with dilemma on ambulance issue

By NANCY HILLS

IT APPEARS to be a choice: Carmel's free ambulance service without paramedics or paramedics with a charge for services.

The Carmel City Council is scheduled to review and possibly vote to support a draft joint powers authority (JPA) proposal between the city and the emergency medical service areas of Mid-Carmel Valley, Carmel Valley and Big Sur. The proposal outlines a plan to provide paramedics to the region. To do so, the JPA, acting as a single entity, would have to charge for services.

The council will meet on this issue at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 23 in Carmel City Council Chambers at city hall to finish their meeting begun Jan. 9.

The JPA is the result of months of discussion between the EMS agencies in the area. The agencies have been attempting to develop a plan that will provide paramedic service to the region and qualify it for Measure A funds to cover the increased cost.

Other areas of the county offset emergency service costs by charging for ambulance service, usually hiring a private provider. It has been a bone of contention between the other county areas vying with the Carmel/Carmel Valley/Big Sur region for county funds that the Red Cross ambulance service is free to the user.

The Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross supplies the ambulances to Carmel, Carmel Valley and Big Sur through its own fund-raising efforts. The ambulances are staffed by volunteers and the emergency response agencies like the Carmel Fire Department. In Carmel, the Red Cross has provided the service for 50 years.

The Red Cross board has taken the position in the past that it would not continue in the ambulance business if there is a charge to the user. The board will receive the JPA report at its Jan. 25 meeting. The Carmel City Council may wish to wait until the Red Cross board has made a decision before it takes a stance.

The other county EMS regions feel that this region should not get Measure A funds for paramedics if the service remains without charge.

Measure A, an advisory ballot measure approved by voters in 1989, gave the go-ahead for the county to assess each "living unit" up to $12 a year to raise funds for paramedics.

However, the approximately $1 million is not enough to provide paramedic service and fund the centralized training, equipment, communications and administration of the program. It costs about $130,000 a year for one 24-hour paramedic position.

Because of that, the regions must develop plans to service their areas with paramedics and utilize Measure A funds they get. The plans will be submitted to an executive committee which, in turn, will recommend to Monterey County Board of Supervisors how Measure A funds should be distributed.

"I think we got sandbagged," said councilmember Ken White. "I think the people who came up with Measure A didn't understand how expensive it would be to provide paramedic service. Retaining the free ambulance service was one of the points we brought up when reviewing Measure A and we were assured it would be protected."

The JPA calls for a continuation of public non-profit ambulance service which can provide the service for up to a "40 percent cost reduction" as compared to a private services.

According to the JPA, paramedics would be provided for Carmel, Carmel Valley, Mid-Carmel Valley and Big Sur.

One of the biggest problems in developing a plan for this region has been how to provide paramedic service to distant areas such as Big Sur, where the call volume is small but the ride to the hospital is long. A charge for the ambulance would not cover the cost of providing the service.

"The result of the proposed ALS (Advanced Life Support) delivery system design is a cost-effective system that will meet the goals of the Carmel/Carmel Valley/Big Sur EMS region, yet will still require a subsidy because of the low-call volume areas in the region," the JPA report states.

North County administrator seeks county schools post

By DAVID LELAND

NORTH MONTEREY County Unified School District Assistant Supt. Bill Barr has announced his candidacy for Monterey County Superintendent of Schools.

Barr, 43, will seek the position currently occupied by Troy Bramlett, who said he will not seek re-election at the end of his current term.

One of the first to announce his candidacy, Barr has already received the support of Carmel Unified School District Supt. Bob Infelise.

NORTH MONTEREY County School Supt. Bill Barr has thrown his hat into the ring for the job as Monterey County Superintendent of Schools. (Mac McDonald photo.)

"I feel Bill will bring to the office a fresh perspective," said Infelise, who has worked with Barr on various projects during the past five years. "I have a lot of confidence in him."

Barr believes the job of county superintendent involves acting as somewhat of a liaison between the district and state.

"The primary job of county superintendent is to help school districts throughout the county meet the requirements of state and federal programs," he said. "A good superintendent performs that task efficiently and economically."

He added that, if elected, that job would not be an easy one.

"The main role (for a county superintendent) is to work at the state level and encourage the state to understand the dilemma that districts are in."

California currently ranks 49th in taxes levied per capita targeted for education. That, he said, translates to less money for education after teacher salaries that are some of the highest in the nation.

Barr began his career in Salinas and has been a teacher, principal and school administrator since 1968.

Barr said that he will use his past experience with the North Monterey School District's insurance woes in setting up similar programs for the rest of the district.

Currently the CUSD's coffers are being drained by rising health care costs, which means higher insurance premiums for workers.

"The key to it is that we have to take control over our own destiny," said Barr, adding that he saved his district more than $500,000 by initiating a self-insurance program. "Insurance companies have had a lock on school districts for a long time and have used them to make a lot of money."

IN HIS platform, Barr outlined four essential points. These are:

- Stretching the education dollar.
- Long-range planning of programs and budgets can save staff hours and tax dollars," he said. "Eliminating costly duplication of efforts can expand the resources of both the county and district school boards."

- Improving student performance.

"Today's student must be able to compete in an increasingly complex job market," he said. "The county office of education can assist the local school districts with continued training of teaching, non-teaching and administrative staffs. The result is improved student performance as state-of-the-art instructional strategies are applied in the classroom."

- Teacher preparation and recruitment.

"The office of education should continue working with state and local governments to expand the curriculum and campus of San Jose State University in Monterey County," he said. "This will give the county superintendent a better opportunity to bring the university and school districts together in providing well-prepared teacher candidates."

- School-community partnerships.

"I believe every student can learn," Barr

Mace training now available

THE STATE license to possess tear gas (Mace) for self-defense is issued to individuals who complete a two-hour California Department of Justice training course.

The course is now available through Sgt. William Kennedy of the Pacific Grove Police Department (375-5154). Fee is $23, payable at the course.

Individuals who phone will be given information on the next course in their area. However, the course also is available to groups of 20 or more persons, at locations provided by the groups. Such groups could include employees, neighborhood watch groups, women's organizations, students, etc. In California the following individuals cannot possess tear gas or enroll in a course:

Persons who have been convicted of a felony, persons who have been convicted of any crime involving assault, persons who are addicted to the use of narcotics, persons who have been convicted of the misuse of tear gas, and persons under the age of 16. But, 16- and 17-year-olds must phone the number above and secure a state consent form to be signed by a parent or adult guardian.

According to the Department of Justice, tear gas is uncomfortably painful and is temporarily blinding, but it is non-lethal. The department explains that tear gas consists of small solid particles of matter in a "carrier" which is projected by a propellant. The particles — or crystals — do their work by vaporizing on the skin.

Tear gas is widely used by law enforcement agencies during the civil disorders of the 1960s and during that time it proved to be an effective weapon which causes no serious injury. In the early 1980s the California Legislature, alarmed over the rising number of assaults on citizens, authorized its possession by persons who complete the two-hour training course and secure the state license.

At the end of a course state-approved tear gas devices can be purchased. Course instructors are police officers who are specialists in crime prevention and self-defense.

Council election filing period has opened

MAYOR JEAN Grace has filed papers to run again for mayor and Carmel Residents Association president Barbara Brooks has taken out papers to run for council as the filing period opened for the April 10 Carmel city council election.

Councilmember Bob Fischer has also announced that he will be seeking re-election and will be taking out his papers soon.

The race is for the mayor's office and two four-year council seats, currently held by Grace and councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Fischer.

The filing period closes Feb. 1 unless an incumbent does not file. It is then extended by five days. Since Grace has filed, the mayor's filing period will close on Feb. 1.

Cultural commission retains seasons for theater groups

THE CARMEL Cultural Commission voted Tuesday night to keep the Forest Theater seasons the same, allowing the Children's Experimental Theater, Staff Players Repertory Co., Forest Theater Guild and GroveMont Theater groups to continue as they had before.

The commission also voted to increase CET's rent for the Theater in the Ground from $130 a month to $160, rent portable dressing rooms for the guild's summer performances and develop a proposal to build permanent dressing facilities at the theater.

The portable dressing rooms permit CET to continue its summer intensive theater program for children while the guild uses the outdoor theater above it.

Because of continued disharmony between the guild and other theater groups, the commission decided to only grant one-year leases to each company this time. It also voted to retain the right to consider allowing other theater groups use of the city-owned facilities.

CBA news

WELL, THE 1990s officially kicked into gear last week with the CBA's first meeting of the decade. If attendance of that meeting is any indication of member involvement, the organization is in pretty good shape.

Last week's meeting was somewhat of a changing of the guard, with outgoing president Barbara Simmons passing the baton to Kathie Ritter.

Both took the opportunity to address the crowd.

For Simmons, it was a look back at 1989 and what the CBA has accomplished.

She lauded members for taking a "proactive" political stance in working with the city.

"In the past we have been apathetic as to what's been happening at city hall," she said, citing recent accomplishments such as working with the city in its parking survey and convincing the Carmel City Council to stretch one-hour zones to two hours during the holidays last December.

Simmons also heaped accolades on the CBA's block captains, who gathered information which they, in turn, passed onto directors. She also touted the CBA's ability to raise funds through events such as "A Taste of Carmel," which garnered $15,000.

Incoming president Kathy Ritter "challenged" members to become involved in the CBA.

"The board of directors cannot do it alone, we need to work together to make 1990 come together," she said.

She listed four goals for the coming year. These are:

- To bring more business into Carmel. Suggestions include forming an economic development committee; providing CBA-sponsored bus tours and enticing Japanese tourists.
- Helping business owners do the best job they can, with the CBA offering seminars to help merchants hone their skills.
- Enhance the spirit of the community by limiting infighting among members, residents and the city.

• Make the CBA more responsive to members' needs. Ritter believes more staff is needed, which means more fund-raisers. "Together let's make 1990 a year to remember," she said.

She hopes Moscow summit will foster partnerships

By DAVID LELAND

ON ONE level, at least, U.S.-Soviet relations could take a quantum leap forward as the result of Carmel Valley therapist Janet Hurley visiting Moscow.

'The whole idea is to go and to co-create and co-develop projects that will be beneficial to the United States and Russia. The whole thing is about partnerships.'

— Janet Hurley

Hurley is one of four peninsula residents invited to attend the Citizens' Summit II, which began Jan. 17 and will finish up Jan.

29. The summit is sponsored by Seattle, Wash.-based Center of Soviet-American Dialogue.

"The whole idea is to go and to co-create and co-develop projects that will be beneficial to the United States and Russia," said the dynamic counselor, who specializes in co-dependency and addiction workshops. "The whole thing is about partnerships."

During the conference, task forces will identify common goals for the year 2000. Among topics to be discussed are the environment, energy, economics, biology, education, business, cybernetics and spirituality.

Hurley will take part in a number of workshops because of her expertise in the fields of alcohol abuse, drug addiction and psychology.

Joining Hurley from the peninsula are Pebble Beach resident John Baldwin, who will work in the area of global communication; Carmel Valley resident Rosemary Matson, making her 19th trip to the Soviet Union, who will work in the subject of education; and Monterey resident and registered nurse Gail Robbins, who will take part in health care seminars.

At the final meeting, the task forces will meet as a whole, each stating their goals in relation to the goals of others. A summary document will be presented to presidents Bush and Gorbachev, as well as to leaders and media worldwide.

Interviewed several days before her departure, Hurley was not taking the affair lightly.

"There's something scary about going," said Hurley, who speaks nationally and internationally on her subjects of expertise. "I'm scared that once I see the total picture of my responsibility (to the world), I won't be able to respond in a meaningful way for the rest of my life."

Nevertheless, Hurley was selected to participate in the seminar because organizers knew her to be someone of strong convictions.

She credits much of her growth to recognizing 14 years ago the reality that she was an alcoholic.

After meeting that problem head-on, she was able to start becoming involved with other people on a deeper level.

"What I really knew I needed to do in my recovery was to give up being right," said Hurley, 63. "I needed to know that the only way to live was to cooperate and to compromise. In that process, I learned a lot about who I was."

Her transformation has been something for others to watch.

"From that time on other people experienced my transformation," she said.

Despite a penchant for warm climates, Hurley is looking forward to her visit to Moscow, which typically is 15 degrees below zero at this time.

"I'm thrilled at the opportunity to have this experience," said Hurley, who added that seminar participants pay their own way.

CARMEL VALLEY therapist Janet Hurley is currently in Moscow exploring ways in which the world can benefit from solving problems together.

While Hurley maintained that she has no agenda for the summit, she is surely committed to ending child abuse in the world and will broach that subject if the time seems right.

"We must end child abuse," said Hurley, who gives child abuse survivor workshops at her home. "None of this make any sense if we abuse the kids."

Home

A CALIFORNIA resident for almost 30 years, I still go home to the house in which my father reigned with his admiring women: his wife, his mother, and his three daughters.

Now, my widowed mother, well into her 70s, lives there alone, although the guest bedrooms frequently fill with friends and relatives aware of the fine hospitality which has become mother's trademark.

When I return home, I sleep in the bed that was mine. Small, at first unfamiliar, single bed, mattress a bit harder than the one I share with my husband in California. I sprawl less, sometimes scrunching close to the wall, deep down recalling an ancient admonition not to fall out of bed. (I can't remember that I ever have fallen.) My back next to the cool wall, I feel safe. My dreams are memory dreams, often scary remembrances. No date for New Year's Eve.... Will I ever be popular? I awake early before day. A car drives by. Its lights pass through slotted venetian blinds and I am 15 again. Did I study those French verbs enough?... Will I remember the vocabulary? Since then, I've been to France, spoken my way through classes and villages. But, back in that room, declension's my concern.

And the next day I rummage, search, retrieve. In an inlaid box of Oriental origin, probably a token from one of my father's business trips, I find a small pearl pin. I brush the beads against my teeth and feel the sand and remember Grandmother wearing this jewelry.

My father's photographs look at me when I am home. In one, he tosses my 2-year-old daughter, ringlets askew, into the air at my sister's wedding. They see only each other. In another picture, mother and father at a surprise party, his last. And the photo from the office: his desk as throne, papers neat, his pen as scepter. These I rerecord as I approach the age that he never saw.

And the basement. This time I complete my china set. Limoges, Grandmother's fine gold-rimmed vessels, singly almost weightless. Together, packed in a box, each piece well protected with sheets from The New York Times, ready to accompany me on the plane westward.

One more item. I take a book with my father's signature on the flyleaf. John Collier's Fancies and Goodnights, which my father and I enjoyed together. I do not ask mother's permission. I just take it, sidestep the unnecessary and become that young girl again who takes an extra candy from the fancy boxed chocolates during the holiday season. No one would know, no one would mind, but it has to be a secret.

Home, a New York suburb. Home, a small California town. Yes, I can be at home both places. Homemaker that I am, I build family traditions and welcome my children whenever they come home.

Spinach is a member of the goosefoot plant family. Surprisingly, it is first cousin to the beet. Eating spinach is a good way to build up iron in the blood.

Social life booming

IF YOU are not confirmed for either of the two big events this Saturday evening, don't bother. The Paul Anka Concert and the Gourmet Gala are both (happily) sold out. The twinges of concern on both sides were unfounded and proves that double-booking on the Monterey Peninsula is no longer the problem it was a few years ago.

We are all aware that social life on the MP is booming and more and more people eagerly wait to purchase tickets (no matter how high the price), to the many special events planned by savvy social and community lions and lionesses.

It is never possible to go away for a little R & R without missing something special, even though we departed right after the end-of-the-year holiday season. We went South of the Border to Puerto Vallarta for sun and warmth and to escape the pressures of deadlines (having just completed a DL minutes before hopping aboard a plane, natch).

The children in Mexico love Kings Day (12th Day of Christmas), because they receive presents. That part was fine, but I would have preferred to have been here for Kitty Ragsdale's fabulous "12th Day of Christmas Luncheon."

Peasant Soup (Mexican style) is no substitute for Pheasant Under Glass preceded by Champagne, Stuffed Prune Salad, Cream of Artichoke A La Chef Jeff Snyder (at the Monterey Beach Hotel), Curried Shellfish in Crepe, Champagne Sorbet, followed by Cherries Jubilee, 12th Day of Christmas Cake, bonbons and coffee.

And that's not all. The company at the luncheon consist of 19 select ladies. None quite as special as the 20th lady. The wonderful hostess herself.

Kitty's theme was "Bluebird of Happiness" and she centered orchids and white tulips on the elegantly appointed table filled with Ragsdale treasures. All this, plus gifts (just like in Mexico except these were for grown-ups).

A few of the terrific ladies who were smart enough not to be away at this time were Nell Meyer, Gail Compton, Suzanne Obaid, Doris Bissell and others.

This was not the only special treat that we missed. I hear raves about the New Year's Eve Celebration at The Inn at Spanish Bay. Those attending said it was the best NY's Eve they had ever spent and predict it will become a yearly tradition.

However, I did return just in time for the opening of the remodeled California Market restaurant at Highlands Inn. Saw a lot of social leaders along with some media types and all having a great time eating the menu samplings of award-winning executive chef Brian Whitmer.

Extra banquettes have been installed, but more important, the bar was moved with the whole wall turned into a window. And, what a view! Great for breakfast, lunch or dinner dining.

Incidentally, that handsome Brian has started an East/West Connection to find out "Can Carmel happen in Manhattan?" and "Will New York play on the Pacific Coast?" It is working already, for this very week he is in New York with an abundance of Carmel produce and fresh seafood doing dinners for the Metro restaurant in the Big Apple. Of course, Brian was formerly executive chef of the outstanding Montrachet restaurant as well as with the Tavern On The Green and The Polo in the Westbury Hotel. So, he is the ideal one to connect the coasts with culinary talents.

Patrick Clark (chef/owner of NY's Metro), started the New Wave craze at the Odeon and will make the West Connection March 21 and 22nd at Pacific's Edge in the historic Highlands Inn. So, etch those dates on your March dining calendar.

Brian is involved in working out all the details for the great "Fourth Masters of Food & Wine" on Feb. 27-March 4, along with Dennis R. Mills (VP & general manager), and David Fink (director of food & beverage). More on the Masters another time.

I hope you have had somewhat of a breather since the year-end holiday rush and that you are rarin' to go on the next round of social enticements. If you couldn't get tickets for the Anka concert or the Gourmet Gala, you can go over to the "Art Reception for Isobe" at the Christopher Grimes Gallery, Carmel on Saturday, 5-7 p.m. On Sunday from 3-5 p.m. there's a reception for "The Mexican Portfolio" of the late Paul Strand at the Sister Kiernan Memorial Library Gallery, Santa Catalina School. And, plan on hearing Peter Ueberroth on the 29th of this month at the annual luncheon meeting of the Community Hospital Foundation.

If you wish to start 1990 honing your artistic talents, the Central Coast Art Association invites you to a free oil painting demonstration at Sunset Center by Marie Gilmore, Jan. 22 at 7:30 p.m.

If fashion is on your mind (and isn't it always?), then reserve an advance appointment Jan. 24-27 for the Spring Line showing of Arlee M Fashion, direct from Paris. Locally, you may see and select at the Steinbeck Gardens Inn, Monterey. Features all new styles and colors, the hooded "Monk Top with Flair Skirt" and the "8-Pounder Travel Wardrobe." Must reserve in advance, so call 624-2214.

The MP Museum of Art holds a reception for Morley Baer's "Forty Years of Photographs" and "The Grapes of Wrath Portfolio" by Horace Bristol on Jan. 26 at 5:30 and on the 27th, York School Music Department plans a "Wine Tasting and Musical Offering" 5:30-7:30. With chamber choir, early music ensemble and commemorative wine glass and non-alcoholic beverages.

What is better than being at the big game on the 28th? Answer: watching a giant 9-by-12-foot TV screen while munching free popcorn and peanuts with stadium food and drinks available. So take your banners and pennants and go over to Doubletree to cheer your favorite team. The Second Annual Super Bowl Party will kick off at noon with $10 donation (children under 12, $5), going to Meals on Wheels.

The Symphony Guild is planning "A Day At the Races" for early February and The Hospice Ball is set for mid-month at the Inn at Spanish Bay. Also in February, "Fiddler on the Hoof" comes to the Sheraton Corral. Brand your calendar for Feb. 24 for this fund-raising auction evening for Congregation Beth Israel. Cowgirl Joyce Kurtz will be happy to hear from you (646-8234).

For certain you will want to "Catch the Wave" — the Heat Wave, that is, and add it to your "not-to-be-missed" list. The second super Life Savers event will be held in April. They promise excitement and frivolity from hot spots around the globe, along with zesty food, riotous dancing and sizzling entertainment. See what I mean? Not-to-be-missed. Remember the one last April? The great Dinah Shore and The Beach Boys entertained. Gary Davis is chairman this year and is working with 19 fantastic committee members.

"All work and no play" will not be the case at the First California Kiwifruit Convention Jan. 24-28 at Doubletree Hotel. Along with educational workshops and committee meetings, count on the Kiwi Golf Classic (PG Links), a ladies shopping spree, men's and women's fashion show and luncheon, and, by popular demand, a black tie gala with six-course dinner, wines, music, dancing, gifts, and surprises all evening long. Followed by a post-convention whale-watching expedition on Jan. 27.

If you are in a Disneyland mood, the Governor's Conference on Tourism will be held March 14-16 at Anaheim Disneyland Hotel.

ENTRE NOUS: Many of us expected Clint Eastwood's movie White Hunter, Black Heart to be released last year to compete in the '89 Academy Awards, but Clint told me, "No, it comes out when it's ready. PAS (started in spring '88), exposes students to artforms beyond those covered by the school curriculum and encourages students to express their own artistic abilities. The program began in Salinas and now includes Monterey and South County elementary schools...YORK SCHOOL, FOUNDED by the late Rev. Emod L. The school began in Pacific Grove with two teachers and 15 seventh-grade boys with a classic curriculum including Latin, math, science, the humanities, the arts and physical education. COMMON PROBLEM. Mr. and Mrs. Erling Lagerholm moved to Carmel from Cambridge, Mass. just about a year ago. So, they couldn't have read my original column on names, but no doubt, saw the update of my name misspellings in my last column.

Well, I've met my match. In the case of Erling it has often become: E.R. Ling, Erving, Evling, Eling, Eileng, and even Erlinling. Back on the East Coast Lagerholm became: Lagerhod, Lagerhaol, Bargerholm, Lageridior, Eagerholm, Lagu, Bargerholm, Gerholm, Lagerhall, etc, etc.

Discovered the perfect cure for whatever ails you in the Wayfarer Church's bulletin. The cure: hugging.

Hugs have many advantages — low energy consumption, high energy yield, no monthly payments, non-taxable, and inflation-proof. Hugging is healthy, relieves tension, reduces stress, rejuvenates, elevates self-esteem and generates good will.

It has no side effects, no batteries to wear out. It is non-polluting and it is nothing less than a miracle drug! Try it.

"I ASKED GOD"

*I asked God for strength, that I might achieve...
I was made weak,
that I might learn humbly to obey.
I asked for health,
that I might do greater things...
I was given infirmity,
that I might do better things.
I asked for riches,
that I might be happy...
I was given poverty,
that I might be wise.
I asked for power,
that I might have the praise of men...
I was given weakness that I might feel the need of God.
I asked for all things,
that I might enjoy life...
I was given life,
that I might enjoy all things.
I got nothing that I asked for,
but everything that I had hoped for.
Almost despite myself,
my unspoken prayers were answered.
I am among all men, most richly blessed.*

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Mea Culpa III

THIS COLUMN is now in its third year and it is once more time to clear the slate.

Each of the past two years I have made it a habit of reviewing my errors in the previous columns as a kind of humbling experience for myself, and serving me as did the man who followed Caesar among the applauding crowds, whispering in his ear, "Thou art only a man." It is also a reminder to those who may take all this too seriously that few of us are infallible, and trying is as important as succeeding.

Among my errors for the year were too many awkward sentences, sentences to which the rules of brevity and clarity were needlessly sacrificed. None of mine were quite as bad, however, as this newspaper blurb:

In its latest vote, the Senate decided 87-3 against tabling, and thus killing, a resolution (which) would begin the process of reversing a motion of invoking the War Powers Act.

It was a year in which I managed to spark a great debate over English monarchical and religious history (everyone seemed to participate in that one), to upset the NRA, to debunk the myth of network "quality" programming and in which I wrote a great deal about the Constitution. Although the bicentennial celebration of the federal charter has passed, it is a subject I will continue to address in the future.

Following an embarrassing error on my part, and with the help of some vigilant readers, we managed to set straight fort and forte, which I hope will save others future embarrassment. I made the mistake of phonetically spelling Junipero as Wa-nipero rather than Yu-nipero and learned the correct pronunciation of the street on Carmel's southern boundary is probably Santa Loo-see-a, not Loo-chee-a, since Carmel owes its discovery and settlement to the Spanish, not the Italians. As a transplanted New Englander, I am unused to antecedents neither Irish, English nor Indian. On another occasion my intellect failed me when I dumped phenomenon and criterion into a list of misused Latin singular forms. They are, of course, Greek.

I was forced to do some very quick research on a request by one reader to help punctuate a dedication for him on a plaque he was donating to charity. Punctuation is my constant bane because I can never find two authorities who agree, particularly on commas, and deciphering any explanation provided in my reference books on the subject requires the experience of a cryptographer.

I had my share of mixed numbers this year, as in "No one in full command of their senses..." and said, in another column, rather foolishly, "Bad... is an adjective describing the condition, not the action, of something." Adjectives do not describe action, period.

Try as I may to avoid it, I still managed to split an infinitive or two, as in "to simply address." My column on "Feeling Badly" prompted this recollection by one reader from the movie A Letter to Three Wives. Actress Florence Bates, having maliciously dropped one of Kirk Douglas's phonograph records says, "I feel badly." Douglas responds in a threatening manner with, "You feel badly with your fingers." Precisely.

"One in the same," and "one and the same" were questioned by a reader, but I am unable to provide clarification, although I suspect, as this reader suggested, the latter is correct. The worst of all errors in 1989, and one which I shudder to repeat, was my use of "must of" for "must have." It was not my original mistake, but I failed to catch it and it is inexcusable. There were fewer typos this year, and so I am having to take more responsibility for mistake myself. What a shame.

Another reader asked me to address the misuse of irregardless, a non-word, and I did so two years ago in a column titled "Lapel Grabbers." This reader also suggested I comment on the frequently heard phrase, "I could care less." I first heard the former and confusing expression from my Army drill sergeant, but successfully and wisely resisted the temptation to thank him for his concern. There are circumstances where it is not wise to be too smart and discretion often is the better part of valor.

I have also received a large number of complimentary letters from places as far away as Switzerland expressing appreciation for my "lonely" vigil. Given the response, it would seem to be not so lonely. Even corrections have been submitted with such absolute courtesy and seeming reluctance, I have often had to write back quickly to assure the correspondents they are accurate and to encourage their observations. Many excellent suggestions have also been made for subjects to be included in my columns, not all of which I yet have been able to use. My heartfelt appreciation for the support (I know, incomplete sentence).

To those who have expressed disappointment about less frequent columns, I apologize, but I am delighted by the comments. I have been distracted by another project, a political novel which is now complete, but as yet unsold, and I should have the time once more to provide a weekly contribution. Your ideas and letters are helpful in this endeavor, so please keep making suggestions, observations, and corrections.

The best way to control winter energy bills.

Winter's coming so you'll probably need more light and heat. And that'll probably affect your energy bills. But if you keep your hands on all the right controls, you can actually keep your energy costs under control.

Start with your room thermostat. Turn it down to 68 degrees or lower if your health and comfort permit. And if you turn it down to 55 degrees or turn it off before bedtime, you'll save even more. Turning it off when you leave the house also saves.

Unless your dishwasher requires a higher temperature, turn the water heater down to 120 degrees—no lower. You'll see the results on your bill.

Families interested in cutting energy costs around their home should call PG&E for a Do-It-Yourself Home Energy Survey. Fill it out and send it back for analysis. You'll get lots of great energy conservation tips, too.

If you're a low-income customer, look into PG&E's new Low-Income Rate Assistance Program. If you qualify, you could get 15% off your monthly energy bill.

This winter, take control of your energy costs. Call your local PG&E office for more energy-saving tips.

Medicare benefits

WITH THE repeal of the Medicare Catastrophic Act you probably wondering what are your benefits for 1990 under Medicare now.

This means a return to multiple Part A hospital deductibles in a calendar year, hospital co-insurance amounts for confinements beyond 60 days and a return to the three-day prior hospitalization requirement for skilled nursing facility stays with co-insurance due from days 21-100. There is also an increase in the hospital deductible.

Here is a summary of what you will pay without a Medicare supplement:

Part A: Hospital deductible — $592. Co-payment of $148 per day from the 61st to 90th day. Co-payment of $296 per day from 91st to 150th day. All expenses after the 150th day. Skilled nursing care co-payment of $74 per day after the 20th day up to 100th day.

Part B: $75 deductible per calendar year. 20 percent of all "approved" charges plus 100 percent of any charges above this amount.

In combination with Part B, cost saving measures of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act have gone into effect again with mandated reductions in Part B benefits of 2.09 percent as of Oct. 17, 1989, increasing the amount of approved charges left unpaid by Medicare.

If you have a Medicare Supplement Insurance each company will be adapting changes to integrate with Medicare for 1990. There is an anticipated rate increase of 15 percent to 25 percent in premiums.

It may be wise for you to shop around after you receive your new rates and modified benefits to evaluate whether your current plan and company is offering you a suitable plan and reasonable rates.

Need information on senior affairs? Write "Senior Line", Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas, CA. 93906 or call 372-7662 or 757-5905. When I recently told you that "the basis for everlasting World Peace has been found", the statement could only have been true or false.

Now, should you find it was false, you should denounce me as a fraud and a crackpot.

However, should you find it to be true, and if you love your life too much to settle for anything less than a world that's operating right side up, then isn't this the moment we've all been waiting for?

RENOWNED DRUG ENFORCEMENT AGENT TO SPEAK TO SHERIFF'S ADVISORY COUNCIL

A top U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent will be the featured speaker at this year's Monterey County Sheriff's Advisory Council dinner on Friday, Jan. 19. Robert Bender, special agent in charge of the San Francisco Field Division, will address the council members on "Drug Abuse & Trafficking — A Crisis Issue."

Bender began his DEA career in 1971 at the San Francisco office. During his tenure Bender has traveled extensively throughout Europe, Asia, Africa, Central and South America. He has served in Thailand and Indonesia, where he was assigned to the U.S. Embassy investigating international drug trafficking. Returning stateside in 1983, Bender spent time at DEA headquarters in Washington, D.C., before coming home to San Francisco in 1987.

In recognition of his contribution to the DEA, Bender has received numerous awards, most notably the Administrator's Award for Exceptional Service. He was also responsible for establishing a worldwide mandatory physical fitness program for the agency.

The Monterey County Sheriff's Advisory Council's mission is to provide funds for the purchase of needed equipment that cannot be accommodated through the normal budgetary process. Their annual dinner will be held on Jan. 19 at the Golf Club at Quail Lodge in Carmel.

PROFESSOR TO ADDRESS STANFORD CLUB

The Monterey Peninsula Stanford Club will present a lecture by Stanford sociology professor Joseph Berger entitled "Social Control in the Intimate Group" on Saturday, Jan. 20 at Douglass Hall, Robert Louis Stevenson School. There will be a wine reception at 4 p.m. followed by the lecture at 5. Reservations are required; the fee is $5 per person for members of the club, and $7.50 for others and guests. For further information, please call 372-0286 or 624-2140.

NUTRITION EXPEDITION SET FOR JAN. 23

What's so fun about grocery shopping? Do you get so confused about "No Cholesterol," "Reduced Sodium," and "Lower in Fat" labels that you never are quite sure what to buy?

Check into Nutrition Expedition, a unique two-hour tour through the aisles of Albertson's Supermarket in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center. Conducted by Barbara Quinn, a registered dietitian with a master's degree in nutrition, participants learn how to make healthy, lower-cost food purchases based on current nutrition research without giving up the fun or satisfaction of eating.

When it comes to nutrition, many of us "don't know what we don't know," said Quinn. For example, did you know that a well-known non-dairy creamer which lists zero (0) grams of saturated fat a serving on its label actually contains as much saturated fat and twice the calories of whole milk?

Tours will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 23 at 9-11 a.m. and 6-8 p.m. Fee is $34 per person or $56 per couple, and includes materials, recipes, and refreshments.

Interested persons may contact Nutrition Expedition directly at 624-5085 for more information or to reserve a space. Tours are limited to 10 persons and pre-registration is required.

Herbert Blanks served as installing officer, Charles Pearson as master of ceremonies, Harold Lewis as installing chaplain, and Vardel Watson as organist.

This marked the 56th annual installation of officers for Carmel lodge. It was an open ceremony to which friends and relatives were invited. A social hour followed in the recently redecorated dining hall.

Q. That our world's in a mess indicates that we're doing something wrong. What can a person do to help turn things around?

A. A responsible attitude indeed! Permit me to suggest the following:

1. Find out what the problem actually is;
2. Learn how the problem has to be solved;
3. Make practical applications of this proprietary knowledge in your business and family affairs, thereby upgrading the quality of your pursuit of happiness while having a significant influence in your community and ultimately throughout the world at large;
4. Encourage others to do the same, making sure to tell your children that a wonderful New World awaits them if enough of us make the necessary effort;
5. Patronize the high-quality products of those whose enterprises embody the revolutionary principles contained in volitional science and the Theory of Primary Property, and who have the long-term best interests of the human community and the welfare of our fellow species and environment at heart;
6. And finally, to quote the great Winston Churchill:

"Never, never, never, never, NEVER give up!!!

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

God governs in the affairs of man

*From the Jan. 21, 1982
Carmel Pine Cone*

When the City of Monterey was only 17 years old, 195 years ago, that incredible American, 80 years old, Benjamin Franklin, spoke at the Constitutional Convention.

"The longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see in this truth, that God governs in the affairs of men. And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid? We have been assured in Sacred Writings that 'except the Lord, build the House, they labor in vain that build it.' I firmly believe this; and I also believe that without His concurring aid we shall succeed in this political building no better than the builders of Babel; we shall be divided by our little, partial, local interests and our projects will be confounded."

Later he said, "This government can only end in despotism, as others have done before when the people shall become so corrupted as to need despotic government, being incapable of any other."

Some 60-odd years ago when I was a lad, Carmel had one policeman, Chief Gus Englund. He and his horse were as cherished as that Lone Cypress. Today there are more crimes committed in Carmel in a week than were committed in the whole of Monterey County in a year, half a century ago. With justifiable concern, we ask what has happened when we cannot walk our streets in safety by day or by night? It has become more dangerous to leave our barred and burglar-proofed homes than it was for the early settlers to leave Fort Apache during Geronimo's wildest depredations.

Oh Lord, grant us whatever it takes to bring peace, order, safety and tranquility to our troubled communities and nation. Help us to reform every facet of government without reverting to despotism which Benjamin Franklin tells us is inevitable unless we curb corruption. Finally, apropos to nothing except that Benjamin Franklin proposed that our national bird be the turkey, we repeat the words emblazoned on a Christmas T-shirt: "It's hard to soar like an eagle when you're living with turkeys."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Much public attention is given to the wear and tear of aging, but very little to "the flip side." A noted journalist, Enid Nemy took up the subject, with examples of active men and women who don't dwell on how many years they have lived, then run into younger people who do. One older woman told of a bright conversation with two younger women at a party. One of the younger women expressed surprise that "an older woman would be so knowledgeable about...things that interest us." The conclusion? Old age can be "a state of someone else's mind."

Tales of pioneer women read at Portofino

"Three Women of Piney," a group of poems about three generations of women in a family which homesteaded in the foothills west of Soledad, will be read by the author, Bonnie Gartshore, at Portofino Cafe, 620 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove, at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 24.

The poems, accompanied by slides, present the women as revealed through family records and anecdotes and interpreted by a poet's imagination.

Eliza Jane Crawford (1836-1914) married George

A. Tash, and their first child was Sarah Paralee Tash (1853-1911) who in turn married George Dosier. Her daughter, Amy (1874-1966), known as "Chat," married first William Rothe and then Edward Gilgleylen. The poems cover the years from the family's coming to California in a wagon train (1859) until Amy's death. The accompanying slides include family photographs and interpretive scenes photographed by Karen Sheppard.

Included in the Jan. 24 program, which is part of the Cafe Poets series presented by Barbara Murphy, will be a few other poems relating to the Tash family.

Gartshore is also the author of a collection of poetry, "Trying to Put It Together," which was published last year and, with Linda Ruiz and Luis Juarez, wrote "Sombras," a multimedia work presented at Hartnell College's planetarium this fall.

There is a $3 admission to the Jan. 24 reading.

Santa Catalina fundraiser again stars Paul Anka

PAUL ANKA will perform in a benefit concert for Santa Catalina School on Saturday, Jan. 20, in the school's Performing Arts Center. A wine reception at 7 p.m. will precede the performance, which will begin at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $75 per person for the reception and concert; $175 per person for the reception, concert, and post-performance dinner and dancing. For information, call 649-1432 ext. 10.

A sell-out audience of more than 500 in the Performing Arts Center is expected to enjoy Paul and his band re-create the hits of his 31-year career as a composer, recording artist, and entertainer.

What Paul writes and sings about is love. And it has been love and a special kind of friendship that have inspired Paul to offer the gift of his talent to Santa Catalina during the last 13 years while his daughters — Alexandra, Amanda, Alicia, Anthea, and Amelia — have attended the school.

"I get a big kick out of doing the benefit concert," Paul said in a recent interview at Santa Catalina. "With the history I've had through my children and my wife Anne's participation at the school, I'm happy to do it. This one is home, this one is family."

Along with Paul's deep affection for Santa Catalina, a Paul Anka concert also requires a lot of equipment, time, and effort, and a group of dedicated, talented people. Here are a few of the more noteworthy statistics:

- 130 cases — 35,000 pounds — of set pieces, scenery; and sound, band, movie, and projection equipment;
- 60 cases — 15,000 pounds — of lighting equipment and trussing;
- a 45-foot air-ride tractor trailer and a 24-foot truck to transport the equipment and stage set;
- 20 miles of electrical wiring on stage and throughout the theater;
- 13 musicians, two sound engineers, one sound technician, one lighting designer/director, two lighting technicians, one band equipment technician, one production/stage manager, plus 12 stagehands.

• A grueling 18-hour day, including 11 hours to unload the trucks and set up the stage and equipment; 90 minutes to rehearse; the performance; and four hours to dismantle the stage and reload the trucks.

Paul takes special care in deciding what songs he'll include in his program, keeping in mind the wide range of ages and tastes represented in the audience. "I try to include familiar material and some that has a dramatic quality in order to keep a nice mood throughout the evening," he says. "I include a little of everything I've recorded over the last 31 years; I take a chance with a couple of new songs; and, of course, I put together a special lyric for the evening."

Since 1957, when Paul became a teen idol with his song "Diana," he has written about 700 songs, recorded by such artists as Frank Sinatra, the late Buddy Holly, Barbra Streisand, the Doobie Brothers, Connie Francis, and Mitch Miller. He wrote the theme song for Johnny Carson's Tonight Show; his score for the motion picture The Longest Day earned him an Academy Award nomination; his song "Times of Your Life" became theme for Kodak commercials; and his theme song for the motion picture Atlantic City took first place at the Venice Film Festival. His own top recordings include "You Are My Destiny," "Puppy Love," "Lonely Boy," "Put Your Head On My Shoulder," "Having My Baby," "One Man Woman," "I Don't Want to Sleep Alone," "Hold Me 'Til the Morning Comes," and "My Way."

Paul has recorded songs in French, Italian, German, and Japanese. He has received 22 songwriting awards for "most performed" songs and songs that have been performed more than one million times. His discography includes more than 110 singles and more than 100 albums.

Mrs. Paul Anka and Mrs. Timothy R. Hall are co-chairmen of the 1990 Paul Anka Benefit Concert at Santa Catalina School. Their committee includes Mrs. Robert Adams, Mrs. Kathi Bowden, Mrs. Robert Chatham, Mrs. Bruce Lee, Mrs. John Pannatoni, Mrs. Robert Podesta, Mrs. Mark Pollacci, Mrs. Benjamin Richards, Mrs. James Sparolini, Mrs. Karen Wiskoff, and Mrs. William Yakobovich.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

Crimes of the spleen

IF COMEDY did not have the South to draw on for inspiration, it would have to invent another such unlikely land. Such a task would be formidable, to say the least. Luckily, Del Shores need go no further than the wacky town of Lawake, Texas for his inspiration. This harried hamlet has been made the site of a family gathering in anticipation of the demise of the clan patriarch, one Buford Turnover. In the parlor of the ancestral ranch house are gathered Mama Wheelis (the patriarch's mother-in-law), his four children, sounding much like the contents of a pantry: Evalita, Lurlene, Orville and Sara Lee. There are also two in-law figures; Marlene, son Orville's submissive wife, and Harmony Rhodes, Evalita's current main man.

As the play opens, Mama Wheelis and Sara Lee are providing nostalgic backdrop. Harmony and Evalita then arrive in their van. They are in between singing gigs and are cutting a record to boot. Evalita is Janis Joplin with looks. Harmony is a long-term doper who is emerging from his stupor to reenter life. Evalita can almost taste the legacy she is heir to, and is pretty obvious about it. Orville is the only son of Buford and arrives with his wife Marlene, a comely woman who we can tell has been mightily abused by this no-count lout. Orville suspects that he has been written out of the will, but isn't sure quite why. Maybe because he had his son Jimbo ("Jimbo's my boy, Bimbo's my dog") put in reform school. He hopes against hope, rummages around for the misplaced will, and harangues his wife a lot. He'd sure like some of that money to buy a power boat. Buford, having had a stroke, wanders through the play spouting mostly gibberish, except for a few unexpected profundities during his occasional lucid moments.

The daughters are a mixed lot. Sara Lee is the best (and only) beautician in Lawacke (pronounced lo-wah-key). Her engagement to Clarence is a desperate idea. Lurlene ran off with a preacher and has become a preacher herself. She suspects that Daddy has cut her out of the will also. She's not a fanatic but she does, in a quiet, insistent way, try to restore decorum to this congress of yahoos. Evalita wears microskirts, sequined tube-tops, feathers in her hair, and sparkle on her cheeks. She's a promiscuous artiste, and uses other people (notably Harmony) however she can. Fun to watch, but horrific to be with.

In the course of the play, much unsavory gossip is exchanged, shocking revelations are revealed, rash actions are undertaken. The play is funny, but unnecessarily harsh in spots. Shores shows us behavior that would be more believable in private than before the whole family. Not to say that such things don't happen. But they don't support verisimilitude. Much of Orville's vilification of Marlene is like this. The title, the Turnover mane and some of the jokes are obvious or dated. "You're not a trash man, you're a sanitation engineer!" says Harmony to ingratiate himself with Orville at one point. Shores is no Mary Beth Henly, still, the play does have many moments of merit to carry us through the story and leave us smiling.

More impressive than those moments, even, is the staff that makes them work, a staff of considerable power and versatility. Mama Wheelis is played by Sandy Williams who in MPC's Hello Dolly recently gave us a memorable Dolly Gallagher Levi. Here, stripped of Dolly's finery, she gives us as formidable a Southern matriarch as ever shopped at Piggly Wiggly in her Hush Puppies and knee-highs. Jeanne Wooster plays Evalita as if possessed by Janis Joplin. But then, in Agnes of God, she played a nun with the stigmata. Considerably outnumbered in the role of the hippie/singer, Jeanne fends them all off with her energy. Kathy Deskin-Jacobs also gives us a double-take as we see her as "church lady" after having seen her courageous performance in Frankie and Johnnie... as the bewildered middle-aged lover coping with the bleakness of urban life. She steers clear of stereotypes in creating Lurlene, showing a flexibility and compassion that made this character notable. Denise Clifford has had roles in the past that require her to be long-suffering. Not here. She begins as the browbeaten wife of the insufferable Orville. She emerges as the powerful, confident, free agent who yields to the redemptive power of love. Denise effects the transition with an attention to detail that makes it

HARMONY RHODES (Craig Dunbar) and Marlene (Denise Clifford) are among the colorful characters brought together by family tragedy in Daddy's Dyin', Who's Got the Will? The very natural. A newcomer, Christina Perez, plays the dingy hairdresser (sporting a bizarre hair-do herself), Sara Lee. She creates intrigue by her handling of the secrets that she knows and sometimes tells. She whirls in and out of scenes, keeping the mechanism in tension.

The men in the cast were also veterans. Harmony Rhodes is played by Craig Dunbar, who appeared most recently in Showboat at the Forest Theater. Craig's transition of his character Harmony from slack-jawed doper to take-charge troubador mirrors Denise Clifford's Marlene. It's one of the most rewarding episodes of the play. I first saw Mark Shilstone-Laurent about 10 years ago at Hartnell in Whose Life is It Anyway? His power to convince is remarkable. He was very good then and he's very good now. I just hope he gets more uplifting roles in the future, than Orville Turnover. His heavies can make one squirm in one's seat.

Len Parry plays Buford Turnover. As he says in a lucid moment when someone asks about his health, "I just had a stroke and I'm goin' crazy too." To play a stroke victim without drifting into caricature is one thing. But to do that and then move in and out of that state without relying on obvious "behavioral flags," is another. Len executes the role superbly. He recently gave us an excellent "old warrior" in MPC's Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia. But his role as "Doc" in Come Back Little Sheba recently, was truly remarkable theater.

Steve Judge's set is suitably Texas ranch-eclectic. Mixing Goodwill rattan chairs with a Duncan Phyfe table as a dining room ensemble was a nice touch. Having Mama Wheelis use Pledge on a Formica coffee table was a subtle comic detail. The costumes were appropriate with the possible exception of Mama Wheelis' lime green house dress. Perhaps that was a bit more "down home" than necessary. Mama gets a better wardrobe as the play progresses. Orville's too small polyester funeral suit, Evalita's tube-tops and microskirts (a black one for the funeral), Lurlene's neck-to-calf tucks and pleats: they all work.

If you're up for a raucous evening of Texas/Dixie comedy with many more guffaws than groans and a chance to see some of the area's strongest acting talent, take in this interesting play. Daddy's Dyin', Who's Got the Will? plays Thursdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m., Sundays at 7 p.m. at GroveMont Theater Arts Center, Hoffman at Lighthouse, New Monterey. The play's run is through Feb. 10. A cafe is open one hour prior to the curtain.

Rare ground

SIGHT BITES: When greatness draws near, that fact must become the lead item. Sonny Rollins and Joe Henderson occupy rare ground — they're the cutting-edge improvisors for tenor sax. Each man demonstrates the instrument's total evolution. Not bad.

Joe Henderson plays Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz this coming Monday night (1/22). It's $12 per with an eight o'clock start. Rhythm section TBA then and there. Contact Center Stage Ticketing if you wish advance treatment.

Neal Finn's Union Dues Big Band works out from 7:30-9:30 Tuesday evening (1/23). Door charge of $4. Good players from our Monterey Peninsula, Santa Cruz area, San Jose.

• Another shape of greatness — bassist Red Mitchell — gave a warm concert at Hidden Valley Music Seminars. Booked by jazzman Buddy Jones, the event originally was billed as a duo with pianist, but Red chose the one-man format. He played piano, sang tunes from his own pen, knocked out audience members with bass solos whose purity of sound and modulations were magical (he tunes up in fifths like a cellist). Red's an evergreen. Since that occasion was so relaxed, he must be identified as a good host too.

Red moved to Sweden in 1968. He works Manhattan clubs three months each year, obviously touring a bit. He said the Caprice Album Home Suite (which won a Swedish Grammy) actually was recorded by Mitchell and his charming sociologist wife Diane at their private digs. From this package he drew old standards, and rendered them with lover's hands upon the strings. (Tower Records carries the item.)

One Mitchell original praised historic bassists Walter Page and Jimmy Blanton. Red said Jimmy advanced the instrument "by three decades." He was equally generous with Billie Holiday as songwriter — saying that her tunes "always hit the bull's eye."

Buddy asked local pianist Bob Phillips to sit in. Phillips and Red closed out the program with two Ellington titles. And so Bobby again showed that he can play with the best.

• A rumor has been floated that Clint Eastwood met with the owners of KRML Radio to make an offer on the Carmel jazz outlet. "It has nothing to do with me," Clint said during a telephone interview on the specific matter with Editor Mac McDonald. "I'm not buying it. They had approached me on occasion and asked if I was interested ... It never went anywhere." KRML co-owner Alan Schultz told me in another phone chat that no deal was being sought.

• Carmel Classic Art Festivals announces that Carnival Monterey '90 will be staged early next month (2/10) at Monterey Conference Center. To help folks get ready, the same organization offers a series of Brazilian dance and percussion workshops at Pacific Grove Art Center. Instructors have been drawn from the professional troupe called Batucaje. Dial 455-2292 or 373-3250 for costs and registration information.

• The Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club welcomes pianist

Smith Dobson and vocalist spouse Gail on Thursday night (1/18). Smith's latest album (with guest star Bobby Hutcherson) proves once more that he's a better than fair singer.

Other bookings: Broadway Band (1/19-20), Bob Phillips and Terry Miller (1/21), Don Pendergrass (1/22), Jack and Ed Show (1/23), Real Time (1/24). The latter's a Santa Cruz fusion group featuring Kuumbwa Director Tim Jackson on flute.

• Sounds like fun. The Club in downtown Monterey spotlights tenorman Terry Hanck's Soul Rock Review on Thursday evening (1/18). With Elvin Bishop and keyboardist Jim Pugh from the Robert Cray Band.

• Local bassist Bryan McConnell left last Sunday for a 20-week gig in Japan. He'll be playing a club at Nagoya, south of Tokyo. Other musicians recommended him to the spot's owner.

• Immensely popular cartoonist Gary Larson's back with the drawing board after a 14-month vacation. He spent quite some time studying jazz guitar at Greenwich Village. He had this barter with Herb Ellis: lessons in return for an album cover done by Larson.

• Miles Davis and the late Nat Cole will receive lifetime achievement awards during this year's Grammy bash (2/21) at Los Angeles Shrine Auditorium. Miles says he'll attend the nationally-televised event.

• National Arts Endowment has presented $20,000 Jazz Master Fellowships to Gerald Wilson, Cecil Taylor, George Russell. The money will support projects of their choosing. I cherish this quote from Cecil: "Playing is not a question of energy. It's spiritual transfiguration. If playing were merely physicality, I'd be a basketball man or a miler."

POLITICAL HUBS today play out that great theme from ancient Greek theater: arrogance brings low the arrogant. Nearly everywhere one looks, the deal-cutting becomes less implicit and more tawdry.

In such climate, readers deserve to know where columnists on all levels are coming from. The national Jazz Journalists Association has been collecting short pieces for its newsletter on how various byliners see themselves. Here's what my Royal portable came up with:

It's likely that fewer than a dozen people on the planet may claim the title Jazz Critic. I call myself another thing.

I call myself jazz writer — participatory journal-keeper who hears well and loves this music. If I can walk in like a washed slate and tell the story of what went down, then I have done my job. I believe the poet Joseph Brodsky: "You don't dissect a bird to find the origins of a song. What should be dissected is your ear."

So I'm a perpetual student and a reporter whose human positioning in the given situation seems vital. Saroyan short stories — early Saroyan — provide a practical model. If I can walk in like that, and collect, and look and listen and later say, that's enough. Such a stance does away with deciding beforehand whether I'm a cheerleader or geeky sniper: the scene and music paint their own figures on the slate (which does have a few words like "jazz history" and "the old soldiers" and "The Real Edge" and so on written along its frame).

Saroyan's name suggests a capacity for, experience; the reference does not mean make excuses for careless or drugged-out or downright ugly music. Not long ago, I walked away from a younger guitarist's gig. He was blowing rage and cynicism. It's fair to say, in print, that his tunes could be accurate to certain urban pockets. It's also fair to say — if you dig watching a hawk eat a rabbit, go ahead on, but that's not really my thing.

Royal Stokes of JazzTimes gave me a tough and fine assignment — interview all six of The Leaders (brilliant band) at the same time. I was challenged by them to ask about what I didn't know (as opposed to writing a cover story that was comfortably within my range of matters already grasped). I did so, and found a new sort of partnership. Jazz artists are hungry for writers who'll become as children for a hot minute, and ask stuff without fear of looking stupid, and jot quotes accurately. The reward: they (our American Mozarts) give up refulgent truths.

I try to get on The Edge with the players: they in their way, myself in mine. It happens a lot more often than it doesn't.

CHEERS: This'll be short because the lady says, "I get nervous when the spotlight's on me." Ruth Fenton was selected as Citizen of the Year for 1989 by Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce. She founded Youth Music Monterey, which stages the annual summertime Jazz Camp at Robert Louis Stevenson School. On the Monterey Jazz Festival board, Ruth expressed "great delight" over the presence of her children and grandchildren at the awards dinner.

Michael Tanner does the spirited and praiseworthy gospel show on Sunday mornings (6-9) over KUSP-FM (88.9). He had been in a rotation, programming every other week, but The Deacon (Mike Moran) moved away. So now Michael's sole host; he calls his entry In the Heavenly Way.

A single father and musician — drums, guitar, bass, mandolin, harmonica — Michael has researched his beloved gospel music fully and serves as advocate. "I try to pass on what I'm learning to listeners as much as possible," he says. "It saddens me when legends like The Soul Stirrers come to the Monterey Bay Area and play before small audiences."

Tanner's on-air hours offer a wondrous mix — old-timers, younger groups, stars like Aretha and Al Green, jazz and blues vocalists pointing their skills at gospel themes. I didn't know Miss Franklin had recorded Let It Be till Michael played her rich version. He invites calls, asking such questions as whether folks like the electronic treatments on some new albums.

Papa Jake Stock just keeps rolling along. Now the venerable reedman may be heard Monday nights (with banjo pro Ed Erickson) at the Sandbar and Grill on Monterey Wharf no. 2.

Artwork showcased in Marina

Fourteen local artists will have samples of their paintings on display at the Marina City Hall, 211 Hillcrest Ave. through Feb. 28. The artists are members of Art Unlimited, a local group of distinguished artists who have served the community for more than 25 years, headed by President Des Matthews, who herself is an artist.

Art works, such as "Jake Stock" by Sunday Collins; and "Old Stage Road" by Martha Eppler are included in the collection.

A percentage of the proceeds from these sales and rentals is used to support a scholarship program. Through competition, annual scholarships are awarded to local senior high school aspiring artists. Several activities during the year contribute to the scholarship program. One popular event is an art show and sale held in the fall, called "Holiday Happening."

THEATER REVIEW

By Joan Swartz Paonessa

Black and white and scared all over

PICTURE, if you will, the New York City of the '60s, black and white and scared all over, its residents under siege. Alienation and fear are the prevailing moods. Random attacks and shootings threaten a populace already savaged by a burgeoning urban cruelty born of overcrowding, filth, and poverty. It is a time of the most divisive upheaval this country has suffered since the Civil War: Vietnam, student riots, drug abuse, and most devastating of all, the assassination of the young hero-president, who, flawed though he may have been, was seen as a harbinger of hope by a nation drenched in apathy. And so the questions arose. If they can shoot the President, who is safe? Does anything have the power to shock? What can we do against the rising wave of chaos?

Jules Feiffer's Little Murders, the current offering of the MPC Players at Cherry Hall, explores one family's accommodation to this crumbling environment with the playwright's usual blend of telling satire, slapstick humor, and an underlying sense of despair. Feiffer, highly regarded as a bitingly satirical cartoonist for such publications as the Village Voice and Playboy, fares less well in this, his first full-length Broadway script. His hit and run style seems better-suited to staged vignettes which are frank re-creations of his cartoons, such as Feiffer and Folks, and Feiffer's People. Here the choppy and rapid-fire approach and the broad, black brush strokes of his satire punch up moments, but fail to present a cohesive, believable whole.

Nonetheless, there are many highly amusing sequences, and Feiffer does make his points. He underscores the "little murders" of which we are all guilty in our lives, the unkindnesses which we inflict upon one another which desensitize us to the larger cruelties inherent in the fabric of urban life.

This evening of theater is very entertaining, despite the flaws in the play's construction. Its success as a production must be attributed to Conrad Selvig's sharp direction, and the performances of his talented cast as a diverse group of dysfunctional personalities. Technical support of high quality is also in evidence. This reviewer was particularly impressed with Dan Snyder's flowingly graphic background design, Marlie Avant's set dressing, and Barbara Dirickson's set painting. Samuel Seydel runs the lighting console skillfully, and Cathy Coates' sound console is smoothly handled, implementing Thomas Burks' imaginative design.

Conrad Selvig's direction is right on target (No pun intended!) drawing as much life as possible from Feiffer's somewhat two-dimensional characters. The beleaguered, alcoholic father, as portrayed by Michael Robbins, the long-suffering, intensely expressive mother, played by Nancy Kocher, and the wacky, gender-confused son, in the person of Christopher John Anderson are all essayed skillfully, and for the most part these actors succeed in overcoming the caricaturish nature of their roles. Robert Marseille as Alfred, the son-in-law whose photographic essays include a series on excrement, reflects the ambiguity inherent in his part. The truest and most believable performance of the evening is that of Barbara Dirickson as Patsy. Hers is a positive role, more deeply delineated in the writing than others.

Mark Heckman and Kent Carlson do full justice to a couple of broadly drawn character parts, as, respectively, the judge and the police officer. In the evening's most satisfactory sketch, Director Selvig appears as a vastly amusing hippie minister.

By all means see Little Murders, both for the high calibre of the production and for the thoughts it may provoke! It continues to run weekend evenings through February 3 at Cherry Hall in Carmel.

MUSIC CORNER

By Nathalie Plotkin

American Chamber Players perform with finesse

HIGH MUSICAL quality began the New Year and continued last Friday night with the performance of the American Chamber Players in Carmel's Sunset Theater under the auspices of the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula. A near-capacity audience was awarded the opportunity of enjoying a selection of music which rarely makes the concert circuit these days, but not for lack of merit.

Mendelssohn wrote his "Quartet for Piano and Strings in B Minor" op. 3 when he was 15 years old and it was already his third work in this form. As in the first two, the piano takes pride of place in the group and Anne Schein was the superior exponent of the concerto-like part. Violinist Alexis Galperine, violist Miles Hoffman and cellist Julia Lichten joined with her in revealing the surprisingly mature musical content of this composition which is seldom programmed due most probably to the enormous demands it makes on the pianist.

Considering the youth of the composer, the quartet sounds quite dramatic and emotive. The pianist literally has her hands full and Ms. Schein played throughout with a fine legato touch and amazing dexterity. The ensemble was sensitive and responsive, bringing out the content of the music with warm tone and great awareness of style. The entire performance was a revelation and the players are to be admired for their dedication in doing the enormous amount of preparation needed to bring this delightful work to the concert platform.

Then, Anthony Cecere, horn, joined violinist Alexis Galperine and pianist Anne Schein to perform "Twilight Music for Horn, Violin, and Piano" (1985) by John Harbison. Cecere's introductory comments were very illuminating, helpful and entertaining, given the inscrutable nature of the program notes. He described the piece as "jazz liquid in a classical container" which was an apt way to put it. It is very listenable music, cast in four brief sections. The first part was atmospheric and moody. The second was jazzy, with a character that was urgent and rather loud. The violin was sometimes overpowered by the emphatic horn and heavy-handed piano. Part three had an archaic flavor with the horn and violin delicately echoing each other in thoughtful lines and, the conclusion was lyrical and wistful. Cecere negotiated his difficult part with great finesse.

For me, the performance of the program luxury "Quintet in A for Piano and Strings" (Trout) by Schubert was the high-point of the evening. What makes this quintet so unusual on concert programs is the inclusion of the double bass as one of the strings, so when it is offered and done so beautifully, the result is a rare pleasure indeed. Frank Carnovale was the expert bass player who completed the string foursome.

There was a sense of spaciousness which was well measured and balanced, as the exposition began. The fine ensemble response, the blend of tone and the musical awareness created an atmosphere of freshness and light. This is smiling music and the instrumentalists appeared to be enjoying their interactions with it and with each others' playing. The violin figures sang and the piano was pure and clean. The grand passionate episodes were given full value in faithful attention to the composer's intent.

The Andante sang lyrically and gave the viola a chance to shine with warm-toned expressiveness. The balance was sensitive and the dynamics were purely proportioned. The Scherzo was light and humorous.

The theme and variations on the song "Die Forellen" were a joy to listen to. Each instrument had a turn to sing the theme over exquisitely traced harmonic arabesques played by the others with awareness and sparkling technique. The finale danced, flowed and rippled beautifully in a masterful rendition.

One could listen with a sense of security since it had soon been made evident that the excellence of the American Chamber Players could be taken for granted. Their preparation was exemplary and they themselves are fine, seasoned professional performers who enjoy what they are doing. Therefore, an audience of chamber music lovers can happily relax and appreciate their achievements.

ROUNDUP

Artists join in all-day draw

The Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove, provides the setting for all-day art draws the first Saturday of each month.

Artists in all media and skill levels are invited to work at the center for all or part of the day. They will share the cost of professional art models and work independently at easels and tables provided by the center. There is a potluck lunch for those who wish to participate.

The fee is $16 for the day or $9 for half a day, with draw hours set 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first Saturday of each month. For details, call 649-4657 or 375-2208.

Camp hosts sought for Big Sur coast

State parks along the scenic Big Sur coast have several openings for volunteer camp hosts — either couples or individuals.

Camp host duties range from greeting visitors and working in a visitor center to collecting fees, maintenance and other duties involved in operating a campground. Camp hosts must supply their own camping vehicles. Campsites are provided, with hookups for water and electricity. Each camp host must agree to work 20 hours a week and stay at least two months.

Persons interested in becoming camping hosts in the state parks of the Big Sur coast may contact Chief Ranger Hayden Sohm, 667-2316, or write to Big Sur District, Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park No. 1, Big Sur, CA 93920.

Free guide to off-highway areas

A new guide to Off-Highway Vehicle Areas in California is available at State Vehicular Recreation Areas.

The guide includes a map and listing of off-highway areas managed by the California Department of Parks and Recreation, the U.S. Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, as well as areas managed by counties, cities or other jurisdictions.

The guide also has a section with safety and preparedness tips and legal requirements for the use of off-highway vehicles in California.

Individual copies are also available free of charge by contacting Publications Section, Department of Parks and Recreation, Box 942896, Sacramento, CA 94296-0838, call (916) 322-7000.

Volunteer gardeners sought

The City of Monterey Parks Division is in need of volunteer gardeners to work in city parks. The volunteers are led by Sandra Forman and meet 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays at the French Consulate historic adobe, Franklin Street and Camino El Estero, Monterey. Bring your energy. Tools and materials will be provided. For details, call 646-3860.

Bring own water to Molera Park

Drinking or potable water is no longer available in the Andrew Molera State Park, located on the Big Sur Coast.

In the past, potable water was provided by "water buffalos." The old military metal water tanks on wheels no longer meet state health standards for drinking water and have been removed from the park.

Campers and day users should plan on bringing their own drinking water. Drinking water is available at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park and Julia Pfeiffer Burns State Park.

For further information, contact the Big Sur District Office at 667-2315.

Park for free in Monterey

The City of Monterey has removed the one-hour parking meters from the first floor of the West Custom House Garage located at Tyler and Del Monte streets downtown. The first floor has been converted to a free one-hour maximum time limit, with the exception of two 24-minute and one handicapped space.

Use toll-free line for park reservations

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system — 1-800-444-7275.

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.

Art council accepts grant applications

The California Arts Council was formed in 1976 to promote artistic awareness and participation in California.

Grantees may apply in one of the following disciplines: dance, interdisciplinary, literature, media, multi-disciplinary arts, music, theater, visual arts and arts service and presenting organizations.

Deadline for the 1990-91 Organizational Support Program is Feb. 1. For an application or information on this or other arts council programs contact the California Arts Council, 1901 Broadway, Suite A, Sacramento, CA 95818; (415) 445-1530.

Cooper-Molera visitor center opens

The Monterey State Historic Park, Cooper-Molera Visitor Center, located on the corner of Polk and Munras in Monterey, is now open daily except Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Visitor Center contains displays on the history of Monterey and the Cooper family members who had an impact on early California history.

Films from France, Japan screened

The Monterey Institute International Film Series will present A Taxing Woman and Mouchette.

Juzo Itami (Tampopo) directs the 1987 release from Japan, A Taxing Woman. Shown in Japanese with subtitles, the film focuses on Gonda, a larger-than-life scoundrel who more than meets his match in Ryoko, a cunning tax agent who looks like a demure housewife but hunts down her quarry with relentless determination. A Taxing Woman will be shown Friday through Sunday, Jan. 19-21.

Robert Bresson directs the Wednesday, Jan. 24 film offering, Mouchette. Bresson's legendary and rarely shown masterpiece tells of a young peasant girl living in poverty. It is also a tribute to the dignity of the human spirit. The film will be presented in French with subtitles.

Both films begin 8:15 p.m. in S.F.B. Morse Auditorium at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Admission is $4 general, $3 for students and senior citizens. For information, call 626-1730.

Regreening of cities discussed

Richard Bennett, director of Earthseasons School, will speak on the regreening of cities at the Friday, Jan. 19 session of the Futures course at Monterey Peninsula College. The public is invited to attend the 9 a.m. session in room 204 of the Humanities Building.

Bennett will discuss use of recycled compostable materials, rock dust and vermiculture. The video, Biointensive Agriculture of John Jeavons, will be shown.

For details, call Sidney Ramsden-Scott, 625-2745.

Classic films shown for children

The Monterey Public Library will screen children's classic films from 4 to 5 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 19.

The scheduled program will include The Three Little Pigs, Goldilocks and the Three Bears and Hansel and Gretel.

All ages are welcome. The library is at Pacific and Madison streets in Monterey, and admission is free. For details, call 646-3930.

MPC sponsors Ano Nuevo tour

Monterey Peninsula College Community Services has organized a tour of the elephant seal habitat at Ano Nuevo State Reserve for Saturday, Feb. 10.

Ano Nuevo is the winter home for a large colony of northern elephant seals. The males, weighing up to three tons, begin arriving in early December, and are joined by the much smaller female seals later in the month.

Tours to observe the seals are conducted through March under the auspices of the Ano Nuevo Interpretive Association. They are conducted by docents from the Association and students from UC Santa Cruz who are majoring in natural history studies. Early registration is advised for these popular two-and-a-half hour tours. Call 646-4051.

Register for Monterey Recreation

An array of recreational activities for spring has been organized by the City of Monterey Recreation and Community Services Department. The more than 100 offerings include classes in arts and crafts, cooking, dance, gymnastics, music, drama, sports and more.

Adults and senior citizens will find many classes designed just for them. Classes are scheduled to begin Jan. 29-Feb. 2. Non-residents and late registration for Monterey residents begins Jan. 22.

Copies of the Spring Activities Guide can be picked up at the Department's administrative office, 546 Dutra St., and at other city recreation facilities in Monterey. For more information, call 646-3866.

Tor House benefit scheduled

The Carmel Board of Realtors will present its first benefit for Tor House on Friday, Jan. 19.

The reception will feature wine and hors d'oeuvres, as well as door prizes. Reception hours are 5 to 7 p.m. at Whittakers Garden and Gift Shop on Lincoln Street north of Ocean Avenue in Carmel. Tickets are $12.50 and will be available at the door as well as at real estate offices.
